MALACAÑAN PALACE
MANILA

Woke up at 5:30 AM but went back to bed still feeling a little weak from the cold. Woke up again at 6:30 with Inelda but we went back to bed although the sea was swirling - "Now is the time to go water skiing," Inelda said. I was set up to it.

But when I woke up at 8:00 AM I was feeling better. And after breakfast and a pill of Decolgen, I went skiing.

Tried out. Slept at 10:30. Woke up at 12:00 PM.

Had lunch. Rest but no nap since I was waiting for the newspaper boys from Manila. They arrived at 3:00 PM having had problems about transportation. I gave a press interview after I dictated a new column to the newspaper letter to Tito Tated.

Inauguration of the new Rural Electrification Plant site at San Roque, Tolosa on land donated by the Romualdo family where Inelda used to play and plant coconuts.

Then at 6:15 PM in the gloaming (nagcaganang hawayag at dibin or takip silin) was at the Romualdo mansion in the presence of Mrs. Salvador assisted by Mrs. Parada and the interment of the new unborn child at about 7:00 PM. Most picturesque and sad. Inelda was crying all the time.
